TERNEUZEN

Terneuzen is a beautiful port city and this connection with water is not only felt in the port. The city offers many (water) leisure options and is also a must for shopping or sampling the culinary delights on offer. In the region around the Western Scheldt, lovers of peace and greenery will certainly find what they are looking for. In the Smits-schorre area near Axel, for example, you can explore the States-Spanish Lines. Here tranquil nature meets some wild remnants of the Eighty Years War. In the enchanting Green Canal Zone around Terneuzen you can take a delightful walk in the fresh air. Or experience for yourself how the Zeeland wind plays a role for riders of the Scheldeprijs and set off for a challenging bike ride amid all this splendour.

QUESTIONS FOR THE HOME RIDER

Brian van Goethem

What is your best memory of the Scheldeprijs?

“My last Scheldeprijs (2020) was special. I spent the whole day at the front of the peloton, controlling the breakaway. In the end, thanks to Caleb Ewan and the team, we could bring the victory home. That was fantastic.”

In what ways has Terneuzen influenced your career?

“As a junior, I tried to ride every cobbled section in Terneuzen. That certainly marked my further career.”

ZEELAND

Zeeland is a green delta and former island kingdom located between Flanders and Holland. It is culturally diverse, located at the point where the land meets the water, intersected by the two 'Scheldts' (Eastern and Western Scheldt). Zeeland has lived and fought with and against the water for many centuries. For example, Zeeland has been plagued by several storm surges, resulting in its constantly changing shape. Villages have been engulfed, even an entire city (Reimerwaal) once perished, but after the great storm surge of 1953, Zeeland is now 'dry'. The islands have been connected and protected by the Delta Works with the Oosterscheldekering (Eastern Scheldt storm surge barrier) as its most famous icon. The battle against the water continues. Examples include 'building with nature' involving new coastal defences such as Waterdunen (Zeeuws-Vlaanderen). Zeeland is home to proud but modest inhabitants who are passionate about their Zeeland and are only too happy to 'share' it with visitors who come here to enjoy the beautiful beaches, culinary qualities and rich history.

SCHOTEN

Schoten is the epicentre of the Scheldeprijs, with not only the men's finish, but also the start and finish of the women's race since 2021. The unique town hall in Neo-Renaissance style is a castle that appears to float on the water. 32% of the total area of Schoten is forest. Schoten remains a green municipality, despite the fact it is densely populated. Because of all this greenery, Schoten is a hit with cycling and walking enthusiasts. During your visit, be sure to explore Park Vordenstein! The nature is both landscaped and truly majestic in its natural beauty. It's the ideal spot to unwind.

“The finish of the Scheldeprijs is located where I lived for four years. That house used to be my father’s and grandparents’ home.”

Where in Schoten do you prefer to stop for a coffee break during your bike ride?

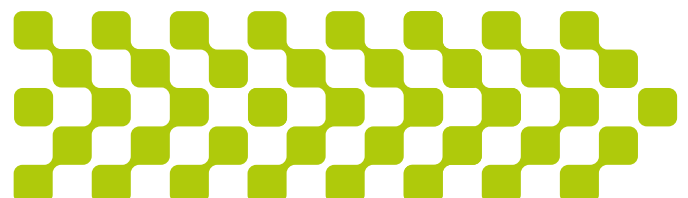

“I prefer to stop at my father’s bike shop or at Bikefit, my own business. They are two separate businesses, but they are located in the same building. They serve delicious coffee!”

What is your best memory of the Scheldeprijs?

“In 2007, I rode alone ahead of the peloton in the final lap. That year, there were ten supporter buses present to cheer me on.”

“ I WANT TO WIN AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE AND I WANT TO KEEP ON DOING SO FOR AS LONG AS POSSIBLE ”

On Wednesday 3 April, we will find out who will inherit Lorena Wiebes' crown as the winner of the Scheldeprijs. As the undisputed victor of the three previous editions, the Team SD Worx-Protime rider is now aiming for a fourth win in a row as well. We asked her what her success formula is.

The name Lorena Wiebes (24) is synonymous with success in the Scheldeprijs. Since 2021, the Dutch rider has been the absolute sprint queen of the Scheldeprijs. With three consecutive wins, she is giving her all for four in a row this year. “I want to win as much as possible. It's obviously amazing to win them one after another and I want to keep on doing so for as long as possible.

Turning point in career

She cherishes the fondest memories of her very first win in 2021 and stresses the importance of the race. “My first win was very important. It gave me a lot of self-confidence after a difficult start to the season, and after that the rest of the year went much better too. Also, the race is important for confidence as a sprinter,” she says. “Winning this race really marks you out as one of the best sprinters.”

Success formula

Lorena sees a combination of team spirit and timing as her secret weapon in the Scheldeprijs. “One thing you do need to have for the Scheldeprijs is a strong sprint,” explains Lorena. “It is known as the world championship for sprinters. But as well as that, it is crucial to have a good team around you, especially for a good lead-out.” For Lorena, her ideal sprint is not only about strength, but also about timing. “I perform best after a tough race, when I still have a good reserve left for the final,” she says. “And timing is everything. It’s perfect when the team drops me off at 150 metres from the finish after a great lead-out.”

Evolution in sprint duels

In the women’s peloton, Lorena sees an interesting development in sprint duels. “It’s a bit trickier because we don’t have as many flat races as the men,” she explains, “but that doesn’t mean we don’t have enough sprinters.” Every year she sees new talents emerge, while even more teams are investing in a strong lead-out, similar to men’s cycling. Lorena also notes: “During the race you just feel that women’s cycling is really starting to come alive, there are always a lot of people lining the circuit and that’s fantastic.” And her victory gesture? “I’m still thinking about it, but I still have time,” she concludes with a laugh.

SEP'S INSIGHTS

Zeeland

With the start of the men's race in Terneuzen and a passage through Zeeland, the wind has played an important role several times in recent years.

Sep's insights

Sep Vanmarcke has started the Scheldeprijs five times during his career. And when it comes to the Scheldeprijs, people often think of crosswinds and echelons. We asked Sep what makes the passage through Zeeland so challenging, how he experienced Scheldeprijs as a rider, and how you as a cycling amateur can conquer the wind.

Sep about Zeeland

“There is often a lot of wind at the start in Terneuzen and during the passage through Zeeland. Riders can’t really protect themselves against it, so they use each other as a windbreak in the hope of saving as much energy as possible. This leads to echelons and thus also chaos in the peloton. After an edition with a lot of wind, every rider crosses the finish line exhausted. You’re in a constant battle against the wind.”

Tips for amateur cyclists

“Find yourself a strong cycling buddy and position yourself in his or her slipstream. When the wind comes from a certain direction, choose the opposite side of their wheel. That way, you’ll be well protected.”

SCHELDEPRIJS CYCLO

Apply Sep’s tips yourself? Conquer the wind during the Scheldeprijs Cyclo on Saturday, April 6, and unleash your sprinter’s legs. Starting in Schoten, you’ll embark on a journey of 80, 125, or 160 kilometers. Discover the beautiful roads along the Eastern and Western Scheldt and conclude with the classic finale of the race.
